Dear Jude:

I am sorry that we haven't been able to get together. But until we do, let me assure you that we're not promoting a "bad" trade bill. The President has promised the GOP leadership that we would try to work with them in producing legislation that would, as you put it, be "better for the economy." Like you, I'm not overly sanguine about our chances, but we need to try. I suspect that you would agree that the worst possible outcome would be for a bad bill to be enacted over the President's veto.

I'm glad to hear that your estimation of Alan Greenspan is on the rise. I venture to predict that you will be among those supporting his renomination in 1991.

While corresponding is certainly less productive than conversing, please don't hesitate to continue writing until we can get together. I do read the mail when time permits.

Best regards.

Dear Mike:

Thank you for your recent letter -- I'm truly sorry for the delay in this response. I well remember the support you and other members of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy gave to the Government's uranium enrichment enterprise, the gas centrifuge technology, and the Gas Centrifuge Enrichment Plant construction.

I am advised that the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and the Department of Energy are presently assessing the question of privatization in accordance with the President's program. I have taken the liberty of forwarding your letter to Robert K. Dawson, Associate Director of OMB for Natural Resources, Energy and Science, who is closely involved in this process. I'm certain that his informed perspective on this matter will ensure that your concerns receive thoughtful consideration.

Dear Jerry:

I appreciate your kind compliments. I thoroughly enjoyed my round of events in Los Angeles, particularly the time I spent with the California Republican Party and the CFA. It won't be easy, but with the help of good folks like you, we will get there. As I told you (and everyone else I talked to), this President is far from lame and has plenty of kick for the last quarter-mile. I'm eagerly looking forward to the next several months.

Needless to say, I enjoyed the Pork Book. It mirrors what the President has been saying for a long, long time. Your tabulation shows how hard it is to get even some of our best friends on all the important spending votes. We really do need to change the process or somehow alter the "rules of the game" to build in biases against this kind of spending, not for it.

Keep up the good work. I look forward to seeing you again soon.

Dear Marty:

I am sorry I wasn't in the office when you stopped by to see Dan, but he filled me in. Thanks for sending along your study on tax reform. Frankly, I'm not overly surprised that the distributional impacts of the corporate tax changes are significantly different from the impacts of the changes in marginal personal rates. I have always thought it more than passing curious that folks in Washington talk about taxing corporations as if they were some mythical entity. Rarely is there recognition, as your study ably points out, that corporate taxes can have dramatic effects on the value of shares and the amount of dividends paid.

I was surprised, however, about the impact on the elderly. It obviously makes sense when you consider their sources of income and their reliance on pension funds and other capital income.

As always, I appreciate hearing from you. Let me know when you will be back in Washington and we'll see if our schedules permit a visit.

Dear Ms. Steele:

Thank you for your June 17 letter in which you express concern about the policies governing the Administration's support for overseas family planning programs. I am sorry this reply is so long overdue.

The policy of this Administration is to provide strong support for voluntary population programs, but firm opposition to the use or advocacy of abortion as a method of family planning. This policy is based on the statutory law governing U.S. foreign assistance, and, as you know, it was announced by the United States at the International Conference on Population sponsored by the United Nations and held in Mexico City in August 1984.

To implement this policy, the Agency for International Development (AID) does not provide U.S. funds to foreign nongovernmental organizations that perform or actively promote abortion as a method of family planning. This policy does not infringe on the rights of foreign organizations to decide how they will spend their own funds, nor on the opportunity Third World women have to obtain advice from whomever they wish regarding their pregnancies. Rather, the United States has the right to decide how it will spend its funds for population assistance.

It is important to note that implementation of the Administration's policy (i.e., AID's withholding funds from foreign organizations which engage in abortion activities) has not reduced our total family planning assistance. AID has increased its support for family planning under this Administration, and AID remains the largest single donor in international family planning, providing more than 40 percent of the estimated $500 million in assistance from all international donors last year.

AID considers population assistance to be a critical part of its effort to improve the health and survival of mothers and children. Family planning makes possible adequate birth spacing, thereby lowering maternal and child mortality rates. Administration policy emphasizes contraception and natural family planning (NFP), rather than abortion, as a means of child-spacing, and AID's support for family planning services measurably reduces reliance on abortion.

Each of the major U.S. organizations that have requested new grants since August 1984, except the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, which has sued AID, has accepted funding subject to the restrictions against providing appropriated funds to foreign organizations that conduct abortion activities. These U.S. organizations continue to operate effective programs making subgrants to nongovernmental organizations in foreign countries.

In conclusion, I do not believe the Administration is prepared to alter the Mexico City policy.

Again, thanks for setting aside the time to send me your thoughts.

With my best wishes,

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.

Dear Mr. Griva:

Thank you for your recent letter expressing your opposition to the provision in the Senate-passed trade bill requiring advance notice to employees of plant closings and layoffs of 50 or more employees during any 90-day period.

The Administration will insist on removal of the Senate provision during the House-Senate conference on the trade bill. Contrary to the reported objectives of trade legislation, mandatory advance notice would make American industry less competitive, not more.

In his most recent letter to the Senate on this legislation, the Secretary of Labor stated that inclusion of any mandatory plant closing provisions would make it impossible for the President's senior advisors to recommend approval of a trade bill.

Thank you for sharing your views.

Dear Mr. Hoobler:

Throughout my many years of public service it has always been a source of great pride that I am a native son of the Volunteer State. I have also been proud of our ancestors -- men and women who tamed a wild frontier, claimed the cloud-covered mountains and the rich valleys for themselves, and brought the great state of Tennessee to its present position of prominence.

Knowledge of its past is critical to Tennessee's future success. That is why I was so pleased to hear from the Tennessee Historical Society that it is sponsoring the publication of an illustrated history entitled Tennessee: The Volunteer State. By selecting Dr. Robert Corlew, one of Tennessee's finest historians, to tell the Volunteers' colorful story, you have taken a significant step toward helping us all learn more about our Tennessee heritage.

I look forward to the publication of this important book. You have my hearty congratulations.

Dear Neely:

Thank you for sending me the article, "Crisis in Panama."
I look forward to reading it in the next several days, when time permits. We are in complete accord with your view that the United States cannot tolerate an establishment of another Communist base in this hemisphere.

I appreciate your kind words of support and encouragement.
You have my warm best wishes.

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.
Chief of Staff to the President

Dear Mr. Fuhr:

Thank you for your message to the Chief of Staff expressing interest in receiving collectable items from the White House.

We receive a large number of requests each day for mementoes from the White House -- honoring all of them would simply be impossible. As a result, we are unable to provide you with the materials which you requested. Your interest is appreciated, and we hope that you will understand the need for this policy.

With Mr. Baker's best wishes,

Sincerely,

Thank you for your letter to Senator Baker inviting him to participate in your American Politics Magazine Roast in January 1988.

I hope you'll understand that a definite answer this far in advance is not possible. If you would like to send a follow-up invitation closer to the date of the event, we will be happy to give it every consideration.

Dear Mrs. Drath:

Thank you for sending me a copy of your assessment of the Guatemala City Accord. The Administration shares many of the concerns raised in your report.

After meeting with members of the Resistance Directorate on August 27, the President stated that we intend to see that the Nicaraguan Resistance has adequate funds until a cease-fire is in place and a verifiable and irreversible process of full democratization is underway in Nicaragua. The Sandinistas' history of broken promises and fervent commitment to Marxist-Leninist principles require that the United States give the process of reform in Nicaragua the strictest scrutiny. The Sandinistas would not have sat down at the bargaining table in Guatemala City without the military pressure from the Resistance. We believe it is crucial that the Resistance remain intact until Sandinista compliance with the Guatemala Agreement can be assessed and irreversible progress toward democratization has been made.

For this reason, the President will request that Congress approve $270 million to meet the needs of the Resistance over the next 18 months. The timing of the Administration's request will depend heavily on what is happening with the peace process in Central America. There are a number of variables, particularly the behavior of the Sandinistas, which will affect how the request is structured.

The President recently appointed Deputy Assistant Secretary for Inter-American Affairs Morris Busby as Special Negotiator for Central America. His role is to maintain a continuous dialogue with the four democracies, both at the working and policy levels, to ensure that U.S. policy is clearly understood and to insist on timely and effective implementation of the Guatemala Agreement. Special Negotiator Busby is stressing our commitment to the Resistance and the need for the Central American democracies to take their views into account.

On behalf of the Administration, I would like to thank you for your support of our policy in Central America. Organizations such as the National Committee on American Foreign Policy make a real contribution in providing the public with information on the situation in Nicaragua and Central America.

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.
Chief of Staff to the President

Dear Jim:

Thank you for your kind invitation to participate in the February 12, 1988 grand opening of the new Psychiatric Institute at the Medical University of South Carolina. Much as I would enjoy being with you, the heavy demands of my schedule force me to decline.

While the First Lady makes her own decisions regarding scheduling, her staff has indicated to me that it's too early to know whether she may be able to keynote for you or not. Nevertheless, I have put in a good word for your invitation to her.

With best wishes for a successful grand opening,

Sincerely,

Howard H. Baker, Jr.

Dear Bill:

Thank you for your kind invitation to the Walter B. Wriston Lecture on November 5 in New York City. Dr. Carver Mead's background is very interesting indeed!

Much as I would enjoy being with you, I must decline. The heavy demands of my schedule limit severely my ability to participate in out-of-Washington events.

Thanks again for your thoughtfulness. Please accept my warm best wishes.
